The University of Texas at Dallas athletics program promotes an environment that encourages student-athletes to reach their maximum potential in athletics competition, academic enrichment, personal and career development, and a commitment to community service. The Comet Club assists in providing the resources necessary for student-athletes to achieve success in each of these pursuits.

The Comet Club is a cornerstone of UTD Athletics, raising money to assist with recruiting, team travel, equipment, facilities and athletic training. With the escalating costs associated with higher education, the importance of the Comet Club is vital to the improvement and development of a stronger UTD athletic program. The members of the Comet Club champion this cause, recognizing the value of the student-athlete experience through their support of our students both on and off the playing field.

The Comet Club is the sole athletic funding organization established to assist the UTD Department of Intercollegiate Athletics with funding to benefit more than 250 student-athletes competing for the University. Through a cooperative effort, we build community support to create opportunities for successful sports programs on a national level. The support provided by the Comet Club allows student-athletes to demonstrate excellence in athletics and academics, while enhancing the spirit, visibility and reputation of The University of Texas at Dallas.

The goal of the Comet Club is to provide unrestricted funding to support the operation of the 12 NCAA Division I sports programs sponsored by UT Dallas. UTD relies on the support of individual and businesses within our community to provide a first-rate student-athlete experience. In turn, the success of UTD Athletics offers a sense of pride to the campus community and serves as a rallying point for our students, faculty/staff and other fans. And, it provides the institution with regional and national exposure to help bring the finest student-athletes to our campus.
